

Providing Assistance When You Need It Most

Losing a loved one comes with an overwhelming array of emotional, financial and legal issues. Funeral arrangements, expenses, assets, debts, taxes, insurance claims, property issues and court documents all need attention.

There are several options you may consider when you are ready to attend to the administration of the person's estate, including relying on a knowledgeable family member or a professional advisor.

If you are considering a professional administrator, the Public Guardian and Trustee can manage all of the details from the beginning through to the final distribution of the estate. Our team of experienced administrators provide professional, caring services with fees set by regulation.
